Press Release

Don't forget anything with the new Alexa Diary "Rememories"!

We bring the diary into the 21st century:

Munich – Pharmacies Journal - 31.01.2021 - With integrated Alexa functionality, we enable Alzheimer's sufferers to keep a digital diary of recent events, thoughts and memories at any time and without further ado.

Do you know how it is when a story slips your mind? You can't remember what you did last month, or even last week? We bring the diary into the 21st century.

Alzheimer's sufferers often forget things that happened only recently. This makes it difficult for them to talk about them with relatives. It also takes away their motivation to spend more time on something.

The new diary, which is easy to use thanks to Alexa, makes it possible for older people who are not very tech-savvy to easily document their day. These entries can be called up and may bring back memories of them or they can be listened to together with relatives."

"With "Rememories", forgotten things don't stay forgotten." - Antonino Grasso, 19, developer

With "Rememories", you can record your thoughts and memories in your personal digital diary at any time, without having to look for something to write about. When you want to refresh your memory, these entries can be easily replayed.

"When I meet my grandchildren/children I can never tell them anything new, I don't remember the events of the last weeks. With "Rememories" I can make entries directly and then share them with my relatives without having to remember them. I think that's great!" - Herbert, 72, dementia sufferer

You can find out more and try "Rememories" now!

"Rememories" will be available at the end of January.
